Students Listen to National Political Forum Broadcast

Ritchie and Allen Present Arguments in Favor of Party Platforms

FOURTEEN GROUPS HOLD DISCUSSIONS

Actual Issues of Campaign Are Considered at Meetings

Students in fourteen organized groups listened to the national political forum held over the radio from Thorne chapel, Northwestern university, Monday night. The two principal speakers, Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and former Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas, presented the cases of the Democratic and the Republican parties respectively.

The object of the forum and of the discussions held following the program at Middlebury, was to analyze the issues between the two parties and to come to some conclusion regarding the relative merits of the proposals made.

The program of the forum was divided into four principal speeches, two by each of the party representatives, the second for the purpose of answering arguments advanced during the first talk.

Governor Ritchie's speech attacked the Republican administration of President Hoover, holding that it had failed to solve many of the problems facing it, including among these the farm problem, the fiscal deficit, the prohibition question, and welfare for the unemployed. He said that it was the party in power that was in a large measure to blame for the present economic depression.

Senator Allen defended the present administration, praising the leadership of President Hoover, and blaming the Democrats for their lack of cooperation with his measures to halt the depression. He also strongly scored the Democratic tariff and prohibition

White Studios Start Work on Yearbook

Pictures of Individuals and Groups Being Taken This Week for Kaleidoscope

Work on the 1934 Kaleidoscope is progressing rapidly, the photography being done this week under the direction of George Ebenhek of the White studios of New York city.

Individual pictures of the junior class are being taken at Hepburn social hall. Group pictures will be taken Sunday at McCullough gymnasium. Juniors are urged be on time for appointments, and are asked to bring a deposit of $1.00 with them at the time of their sitting. A schedule for individual pictures is posted on the old chapel bulletin board. By a vote of the class the women are not required to wear drapes unless they desire.

Write-ups of organizations and class sections are now under way. The work for these is being done by the tryouts from the sophomore class, who were instructed by Thomas Noonan '34, editor, at the Kaleidoscope board meeting Sunday, to follow the CAMPUS style in their work.

The board voted to have the cover of the year book made by S. K. Smith and company. This is the same concern which designed the cover last year.

A Tempo Club to Sponsor Recitals in Mead Chapel

Plans for the coming year were discussed at the first business meeting of the A Tempo club, Friday afternoon, October 14, in Pearsons social hall.

The club decided to sponsor a musicale each Friday afternoon throughout the year from 5 to 5:30 in Mead memorial chapel. This plan was carried out by the A Tempo club in conjunction with the Women's student government association last winter, and the recitals were well received by the student body.

Members of the various musical organizations in college, such as the band, orchestra, and glee clubs, or those who play certain instruments, are asked to present half hour recitals in the chapel each Friday afternoon. Students may come in and leave at any time, as the programs are informal.

At the meeting Elly Delfs '33, Rachel Heald '33, and Dorothy Gifford '34 were elected members of the A Tempo club program committee, which will have general charge of the musicales and of other entertainments given during the year.

Women Will Hold Debate With Bates

First Contest October 25 is on Cancellation of War Debts by United States

The first home debate of the women's varsity team will be held with Bates October 25, at 7:45 p. m. in Mead memorial chapel.

The topic will be, resolved, that the United States should cancel war debts owed to her by former allies. The Middlebury team composed of Janet Stainton '33, Lovina Foote '34, and Dorothy Canfield '35, will uphold the affirmative side of the question. Helen Hamlin, Margaret Perkins, and Eva Soustroem will represent Bates.

It will be a non-decision debate with an open forum afterwards. President Moody will preside. Miss Stainton and Miss Canfield were participants in all the debates held last year, but as Lovina Foote has not held a position on the team before this year, this will be the first time she has taken part in active debating.

Two years ago Middlebury met Bates, here, in a non-decision debate. Last year the contest was held at Lewiston, Maine, and as in 1930 there was no decision. There were open forums after both these encounters.

A new plan has been adopted which consists of a series of practice debates to be held throughout the year. The first one was held Tuesday afternoon, October 18 at four o'clock in Old chapel. These debates are between the varsity and the second team. All people trying out for debating are eligible.

First Meeting of Wagner Group to Be Held Friday

The Wagner operas will be studied again this year by a group of students under the direction of Mr. Lansing V. Hammond. This is the second year that such a group has met.

All students interested are invited to attend, there being no membership charges or other fees. The first meeting of the group will be 7:30 Friday night at the home of Prof. Raymond H. White.

Wagner Verein has been chosen as the name of the group this year. The idea of the studies is to obtain an understanding of the music of Wagner through the playing of operatic records. The records are supplemented with running commentary. Wagner will be studied for the first part of the year and well known symphonies the latter part.

Last year "Tannhauser", and the opera of "The Ring of the Nibelung" were very popular. The meetings were held at the home of Prof. and Mrs. John G. Bowker.

Varsity Debaters To Meet Oxford University Here

Subject to Be Cancellation Of All War Debts and Reparations

ENCOUNTER TAKES PLACE OCTOBER 31

Coming Contest to Be Third International Debate For Middlebury

The Middlebury College debating team will open its season Monday evening, October 31, when it meets a team representing Oxford university, England. The contest will be held in Mead memorial chapel at 8:15 p. m.

The subject to be discussed is resolved, that this house would welcome the cancellation of all war debts and reparations. Middlebury will uphold the negative side of the question.

The Oxford debate will be the third in a series of international contests in which Middlebury has engaged within the past four years. Three years ago Middlebury lost to an Australian team by a two to one decision. Two years ago the decision of one judge was granted in favor of a team representing the Scottish universities union.

The Oxford team is making an extended trip through the eastern part of the United States and meets Middlebury as one of its early contestants. Two-man teams will participate in this debate, the members of the English team being chosen as representatives of the Oxford union society. Both men are from Oriel college at the university.

The Oxford team is composed of A. J. Ervine and Geoffrey M. Wilson, both of whom plan to enter law, the latter having won a Harmsworth law scholar-

Parts Assigned for Dramatic Club Play

Three-act Show, "Candida", To Be Presented Friday And Saturday Next Week

This three act comedy by G. Bernard Shaw will be given Thursday and Friday, October 27 and 28, at the college playhouse. Modern costumes will be worn in this presentation, and not those of the period about which the play was written. This idea has been carried out very well recently, especially in Shakespearean productions.

In this play Shaw does not use social institutions as the objects of his witticisms, but human character. "Candida" has enjoyed popularity since its first production and is representative of the author's comedies.

For this first of the long plays holders of dramatic club tickets will be admitted without further charge. Other student tickets will be seventy-five cents. The admission price for all non-students is one dollar. These tickets may be purchased at either the playhouse or Cushman's.

The cast is as follows:

Casting has been completed and rehearsals are well under way for "Candida", the first dramatic club play of the year.

Candida	Barbara Perkins '35
Proserpine	Marion W. Russell '35
Morell	Franklin Butler '33
Marchbanks	Kingsley R. Smith '33
Burgess	Emery T. Hutchins '34
Lexy	Howard Munford '34

It is expected that a program of one act plays will be presented by the department the first week in November.

First Number of Saxonian Will Be Issued Next Week

The first issue of the Saxonian will be published sometime during the coming week.

Material included in the magazine has been taken from contributions which were received by the board. This number will contain both short stories and poems, two of which were written by freshmen.

John I. Smith '35 will have some of his poetry in this issue. His work has been enjoyed in the past by the readers, and should prove an added feature

This year a new cover has been designed for the magazine. It is along the same conventional lines as that which has been used previously, but is different in many respects. The same drawing will be used for all the issues.

The board is planning to print six issues of the Saxonian, but no definite promises can be made at the present time.

Students are urged to contribute to this literary publication, and may do so by putting material in the box in the bookstore or giving it to any member of the board.

Junior President Is Charles N. DuBois

Anna A. Tuthill and Matilda A. Romeo Vice-President and Secretary of Class

Charles N. DuBois was elected president of the junior class, and Anna Tuthill, vice-president, at a meeting held October 14, in Warner Science.

Matilda Romeo was elected secretary, Monday, October 17. The treasurer will be chosen at a future meeting.

DuBois is literary editor of the 1934 Kaleidoscope, and was editor-in-chief of the 1932 handbook. He is assistant business manager of the CAMPUS, a member of the band and the English club. He is secretary of Pi Delta Epsilon, a member of Kappa Delta Rho and Kappa Phi Kappa.

Miss Tuthill is an assistant editor of the CAMPUS and belongs to the French, choral and dramatic clubs. She served on the soph hop committee and was chairman of the sophomore rules committee. She is a member of the orchestra, secretary of W. A. A. and is affiliated with Alpha Xi Delta.

Miss Romeo sings in the choir, and belongs to the spanish, choral, glee and hiking clubs. She is a representative to the sorority council, and secretary of the student government association. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta.

The matter of individual writeups in the Kaleidoscope was also discussed at the meeting Monday. Thomas Noonan, editor of the book, said that he thought they should be omittted, but asked the opinion of the class on the question.

Social for Big and Little Sisters is Held by Women

The women's association sponsored a social gathering for the big and little sisters, Monday evening, October 17, in Pearsons social hall. Mr. Lansing V. Hammond lectured on the English folk song. Refreshments were served.

By a recent vote of the fraternities, the women's association was made a social committee of the student government association to be in charge of all social activities of the league. Winifred Bland '34 has been appointed chairman of the Hallowe'en party, definite plans for which will be announced later.

Sunday, October 30, demi-tasse will be served after dinner as was done last year. Eloise Barnard '33 has charge of arrangements for Pearsons, and Faith Arnold '35, for Hillcrest.

Julia Sitterly '33 has been appointed music chairman for the informal dancing on Wednesday evenings. November 2 there will be an entertainment for the sophomores and seniors, with Virginia Easler '35 in charge.

Hoover Leads in CAMPUS Vote For Presidency

Republican Favorite Both as Personal Candidate and Victor

NORMAN THOMAS IS SECOND ON BALLOT

Roosevelt Third as Individual Nominee and Second as Winner

Herbert Hoover was the overwhelming choice of Middlebury students for president in the CAMPUS straw ballot conducted in chapel yesterday morning.

There was an opportunity on the ballot both to express one's personal choice and to name the candidate considered as the victor in November. Hoover won both contests, polling 318 votes as a favorite candidate and 316 as the man having the best chance of being really named in the national election.

Norman Thomas, the Socialist nominee, came second as the favorite candidate having 144 votes. Roosevelt received only forty-five votes as a personal choice, while his opponent for the nomination of the Democratic party, Alfred E. Smith, received two votes and was mentioned on several ballots.

As the man most likely to win in November Roosevelt polled 184 votes while Thomas received only three.

It it interesting to note that of the 316 ballots for Hoover 248, or 78 percent, were also cast in his favor as the November winner. Roosevelt obtained 80 percent of the votes favoring him as a personal choice or thirty-six out of forty-five. Thomas obtained only 2 percent of the personal choices favoring him, or 3 out of 144.

This ballot was conducted by the CAMPUS in order to obtain the student opinion on the coming national election. Yesterday was chosen as the best day for the voting because of the series of political conferences of the night before. A full tabulation of votes is printed on page six.

Fraternity Rushing To End October 22

Formal Bids to Be Extended to Freshmen on Saturday Evening; Visits Continue

This week marks the end of rushing in the men's college for 1932, with definite periods set for freshmen visiting fraternity houses each evening until pledge day, Saturday.

First year men have received calls from fraternity men during a two-week period, beginning Sunday, October 2, which was devoted to the mutual introduction of the two groups. The last calls of this nature ended last Friday at noon.

Monday and Tuesday comprised the first division of this week, each evening consisting of a dinner date and three evening engagements, ending at ten-thirty. Monday night periods were adjusted to permit student discussion groups on the nationally broadcast political summary at ten o'clock.

Tonight and tomorrow night are in the second period of the week, each evening being divided into three engagements; 5:30 to 8, 8 to 9:30, and 9:30 to 11. Friday will be arranged as deemed necessary by the interfraternity council.

The council met Sunday evening in order to determine the freshmen's dates for the first period and met last night to arrange for tonight and Thursday.

OPEN FORUM.

The apparent lack of interest in current affairs among Middlebury College students is deplorable. It can probably be said that ninety percent of the three upper classes are politically illiterate. When it is considered that the same conditions hold true in many other colleges throughout the country the result is actually alarming. Our democratic form of government is threatened today as it has not been for years. The only way it can be preserved is by an intelligent understanding of the methods of government by the leaders of the nation. We do not mean of necessity the people who are elected to office but the people who hold positions of responsibility in professional and business life. College students of today will occupy such positions tomorrow, and it is to such people that the world will look for leadership.

It is true that in many quarters politics are considered fundamentally corrupt. An editorial appeared in a prominent eastern college publication last spring advising students to keep out of politics as something too dirty and degrading for college men to enter. The educated can spend their time with more profit in enterprises with nobler ambitions and accomplishments. That such a viewpoint would be maintained for an instant is shocking for it is only by active participation in government on the part of intelligent citizens that politics can be made clean and graft and corruption discarded.

We were happy to observe the interest shown in the radio broadcasts on the national campaign Monday night. It showed that Middlebury students at least have some desire to know what is going on around them. However, we believe that something more concrete should be done to maintain interest in political affairs. Last year Middlebury sent a delegation to the liberal conference at Williams college. Otherwise nothing of a general nature was accomplished to crystalize student thought. We advocate the formation of a society to study contemporary events.

Such groups are found in many of the leading colleges of the east. Williams has its Liberal club. Brown held a model League of Nations last year to which other colleges sent delegations. Harvard has recently organized an intramural organization of the same sort. We understand that a Model League is to be established at Boston university. Bowdoin college has what is known as the student forum where current problems are studied. A similar organization could be formed easily at Middlebury. Membership would be open to the entire college with small assessments to defray the expenses of outside speakers. Such speakers would talk to the group at its weekly meetings. At other times the group would be addressed by a professor, or maybe a brief formal debate could take place, after which the floor might be thrown open for discussion.

An organization of this type would do much to create an active interest in current affairs on the part of the student body. It would cause its members to have accurate information upon present day topics. The practice of quick thinking resulting from the forum would be valuable in itself. Above all we believe that the keen interest in the present campaign as shown Monday night would be turned to a good use and not dissipated in bull sessions which reach no conclusion.

Galley Grist

—by John Israel Smith

What with the rain, the falling leaves, and the discovery that our best pair of shoes is sadly going the way of all soles, we feel like quoting Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, or else Samuel Hoffenstein, who seems to have been forgotten — or what is still more sad, never to have been heard of, by this generation of freshmen. But we'll console our hypochondria with that exhilarating little couplet of John Gay's in case you haven't ever heard it:

Life's a jest and all things show it;
I thought so once but now I know it.

There now, we feel immediately relieved! And there's more of John Gay that's equally as good: The Beggar's Opera, for instance, in the event that you might be curious. It's a much better panacea for boredom and the stomach ache than paregoric or Greta Garbo.

The Saturday Review has been publishing articles on what the presidential candidates read at home. We've concocted the idea of a pleasant little series on what our faculty reads, and why in heaven's name they do it. But we're uncertain as to whether the student body would be interested in that sort of thing, so we ask you simply to send in your answer on a postal. We read with various degrees of facility Latin, French, and German, so don't write in Greek . . . . . And we'll really attempt to discover whether Miss Bowles reads cook books in her spare time, or Prexy the Book of Genesis, or Haller How to Earn Money by Camera.

Now hold on tight, we're going to become very serious and talk about something so generally ill-considered as poetry. We're a bit apologetic that this had to happen but it's part of the job, you know, and jobs - - well, they're rare now and this one we've got is particularly rare!

Macmillan — to pass beyond transitions — has brought out Edwin Arlington Robinson's new book of poems, "Nicodemus and Other Poems", which sells for one dollar and seventy-five cents, but which can be borrowed from the library in an exigency, if you don't feel like giving up your chewing gum allowance to buy it.

The poems, the majority of which are treatments of Biblical characters, are in the traditional vein of Arlington Robinson psychological realism. The title poem, which is a colloquy between Nicodemus and Caiaphas, has marvelous passages such as this:

No, Caiaphas, I'm not saying that we are mad.
I'm saying that we are dying while we are dead . . . .
He is the light, and we, who love the dark
Because our fathers were at home in it,
Would hound him off alone into the hills
And laugh to see that we were rid of him.
In darkness we might see as much as that,
Not seeing what we were doing for ourselves
In doing ill for him.

And again:

There's no security in a subterfuge
Where truth is marked a madness.

And in the analysis called Hector Kane there occurs this lucidly penetrating couplet:

We die of what we eat and drink,
But more we die from what we think. . . . .

The same collection includes poems on Touissant L'Ouverture, on Sisera, on the Prodigal Son and concludes with a longer poem entitled The March of the Cameron Men.

Shreds and Patches

—by James S. Tyler

A good way to lead off this afternoon is to doff the editorial hat to wit as it is found on the mythical area known in Kaleid write-ups as the other side of the hill. There's no doubt about it, some of our li'l ladies crash through with dazzling brilliancy at times. At other times, however, we get things like this. It was suggested that Middlebury is a haunted place, just because we hear a lot about college spirit. Anyway, if you'd had any sense, you'd have skipped this paragraph.

Every so often it behooves us to wax cryptical (or is it cryptic?) by writing a shred that only a few will understand and appreciate. This is one. Was it a revival of the gunpowder plot, in a local setting, that blew a sophomore's eyebrows up against the side of a fraternity house one afternoon last week?

Included in the catalogue next year we look for a course in practical cow-breaking, limited to senior men. Tom Mix was an East Side soda jerker compared to the boys who undertook to recapture the heights of Pearsons from a placid herd of bovines, complete with cuds. (The cows, silly, not the boys.)

Something that should have made front-page on the Times, but which was relegated to an inside sheet was the news that Il Duce himself, yes, Muscleini, was fined two bits for not handling a gun properly at a national shoot held outside Rome the other day. Benito's uncrossed supremacy so far suggests Winchell's simile: as futile as the king of Italy.

Aside from the bad effects in sleeping through classes, there are certain advantages in working late at night, listening to the radio programs that come over early in the morning. A few nights ago, for instance, we heard the announcer state that Walter Damrosch would resume his winter series of music appreciation concerts the following Saturday, whereupon another announcer took the microphone and introduced a dance program by Wesley Barrie's orchestra, in Albany. Let's be original and say from the sublime to the ridiculous.

On the question of bicycles on the college campus we have nothing but the most frenzied acclaim. The way the track season goes next spring will be an indication of how healthful it is to pedal up chapel hill in the rain.

Here we are on the second column, already among the patches, and we haven't raised a toast to the frosh eleven who managed to lead the Montpelier team through four quarters of personality-plus football Saturday. Here's to them, even if a couple hundred townspeople did leave the field disappointed. Not only did the Cubs take the game, but they carefully dumped two buckets of water on the Montpelier coach and reserve bench on a wide end run, establishing a precedent in the way of showing interscholastic feeling.

Now that the skunk episode of chapter one is finally straightened out, as far as we know, to the satisfaction of everybody concerned, we reach the conclusion that it might be better to concentrate more on freshmen, or assistant professors, at least. Is everybody happy?

In spite of the fact that it's the duty of this colyum, as we understand it, to present the news worthy of comment to our reading public — (Our reading public — that sounds pretty good, yes?), in spite of that, we are forced, out of decency to omit a swell crack about a prominent senior who tried her best to break up the Quaker system of chapel seating. No, we can't print it. Sorry!

Those of you who find yourselves continually slipping in the courses, and we know just how you feel, might be interested to know that probably it's just a matter of having no cortex. Simple, isn't it? It seems the cortex is a rather important part of the cerebrum, see? People with a limited amount of cortex are deficient and that's all there is on that page. It's a great course, though.

CALENDAR

Advance notices of college activities signed by one authorized and handed to a member of the CAMPUS editorial board before 5 p. m. Tuesday will be printed in the week's calendar.

Saturday—

Episcopalian Retreat

A short retreat will be held for women at Rock Point, Burlington, Saturday and Sunday under the auspices of the St. Stephen's Episcopalian church. The Right Reverend Samuel B. Booth, D. D. will be the conductor. Those interested in going are asked to communicate before Friday with Catherine McDermott '35 or the Rev. Dr. Knowles.

Miss Hayden to Meet All Students Interested in Joining Choral Club

A meeting of all students interested in joining the choral club will be held in the music studio Wednesday, October 26, at 6:45 p. m. This organization is open to all men and women in the college who are interested in group singing. Those who will not be able to be present are asked to see Miss Minnie Hayden or send their names to her before the time of the meeting.

COMMUNICATION

The CAMPUS welcomes communications upon any subject, but does not necessarily endorse opinions contained therein. No unsigned communications will be printed.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CAMPUS:

We have been playing at elections, — attending rallies and discussion groups, and casting a straw vote. This in all great fun, but what are we going to do when we face the actual problem of whether to vote or not to vote? Of course a large percentage of the student body has not yet reached its majority. But what about the others? Are they going to profit from "the privilege of the polls"?

"The privilege of the polls," you say, — "a fine sounding but empty phrase." Despite your not unfounded pessimism, I still maintain that it is a privilege.

The lassitude or rather the absolute discouragement of the American student in regard to this business of voting is almost pathetic. Seemingly we have been so shocked by the weaknesses of our present democratic policy that we are ready to quit. We sit back and let life slap us in the face without gathering together enough ambition to hit back.

The radio discussion group that I attended concluded that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats had anything to offer, — that one was as vicious as the other, — and that since there is no chance that anyone except a Republican or a Democrat will be elected, what can we do? Rather than go against our principles by voting for either major candidate, or to cast a vote that would be a mere formality, why vote at all?

If this is going to be the attitude of her college men, what kind of a future can America look forward to? According to such principles the only hope is for a revolution, and that in the grab-bag that ensues somehow or other our party will come out on top.

That is taking a pretty long chance. True, the democratic policy was formulated upon the background of a revolution, but the democratic policy does not seem to be succeeding. Can we be

Religion Needs Joy Rather Than Gloom

Happiness and Christianity Essential to Each Other According to Dr. Baillie

Joy is essential to Christian religion, in the opinion of Dr. John Baillie, the vespers speaker Sunday, October 16. Dr. Baillie is a member of the faculty of the Union theological seminary.

From the text, Philippians iv:4, "Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again, I say, Rejoice," Dr. Baillie drew the lesson for his sermon.

Many people today assert that Christianity stands for repression and heaviness of spirit. Extremists even say that this religion is a killer rather than a maker of joy.

If we were to inquire into the lives of the "laughter loving Greeks," as they are known in modern times, we would find that contrary to the epithet, a great many restraints bound them. So it might be possible to prove that the Christian religion does, in reality, have exaltation of spirit. If our religion is gloomy, we have made it so by mixing our piety with melancholy.

Certain contemporary minds believe, in addition, that Christianity is a middle-aged gospel. This idea is disproved by the fact that young men, Christ and his disciples, originated it. "Don't worry, and cheer up", were words often spoken by the Lord. From first to last he stood for energy, hope, and faith.

The apostle Paul, in his letters, was trying by emphasis and repetition to drive home the fact that joy is a duty to which we are bound, and not optional, while joylessness is forbidden as a sin.

In spite of the persecution which the early Christians suffered, because they had open eyes for the dark side, they found joy.

Mediaeval moralists considered the combination of laziness and depression as one of the deadly sins. So it is true that the best cure for much of the low-spiritedness of the world today would be the use of the three-fold principle of Christianity: think less of ourselves, more of others, and more of God. There is no better way to turn sorrow into joy.

The happiest people are those in whose hearts and lives the spirit of Jesus Christ has done its work. Nowhere is there any joy equaled by that which shines in the lives and households of true followers of Christ.

Poking About

—by Carol H. McNeely

When the mountains loom blue on the horizon, the hills turn to Paisley shawls laid out to dry, and the ground is littered with scuffle-y leaves, then is the time to go poking about in all the lanes and corners you've always wanted to see and never have.

I'll bet you've never been up to Belden's. No? Don't wait any longer. Take the road to the covered bridge north of town (Note to freshman: follow Weybridge street and turn right) and follow the road left of the bridge, not through it, past the Morgan Horse farm and about a mile beyond. Suddenly, there you are, in a lovely bit of wilderness made for the adventurous. Cross the wavering suspension bridge over the rushing falls and follow the path. But leave the path soon and explore for yourself. There is the graveyard of the Belden family, where the most recent grave is 1807 and the pine trees have undermined the tiny wall around the five stones till it is hardly recognizable as a wall. Follow the wiggling creek till it joins the Otter, and come back through the woods on an old road unused for at least fifty years, for young trees have sprouted in its path. When the shadows lower and you're getting hungry, follow the railroad track home, a three-quarters of an hour walk.

If you've never tasted sweet cider where it's made, in a shack smelling of wood and apples and melted sunshine, if sunshine has a smell, take the West road past Hillcrest and turn left at the schoolhouse. The cider mill is at the left side of the road, about a half-mile from the school. If you like your cider hard, bring some home for the dreary evenings in December. You can change the walk back to Middlebury by continuing and taking the first road to the left, coming home past Fraternity row.

Otter creek is lovely in the fall, when colors line its side and drip into the water. If you prefer walking, you'll want the river road at the end of Court street, which turns right at the minature golf course and filling station. The Three Mile bridge crosses the creek and the road brings you home by the hospital.

College Band Holds Regular Practices

Organization Plans to Give Concerts Later and to Play at Norwich Game

The Middlebury College band is practicing every Wednesday evening under the direction of Joseph F. Lechnyr of Burlington. Twelve freshmen have been admitted to the organization, increasing its personnel to twenty-nine.

Russell H. White '34 is manager of the band and an assistant manager will be elected this week. Charms are to be awarded to the members this year.

The instrumentation this fall is exceptionally good. Plans are being made for one or two concerts to be given at a later date. The band will also go to Northfield to play at the Middlebury-Norwich game November 5.

The members and the instruments they play are as follows:

Alto: Charles N. DuBois '34, Ralph H. Meacham '36.

Saxophone: Baden P. Lewis '33, John A. Reilly '34, Richard C. Hubbard '36.

Clarinets: C. Leigh Ingersoll '33, Clifford F. McLure '34, Donald W. Miles '35, Clifford T. Conklin '36, Malcolm E. Gross '36, Harrison F. Renfrew '36, Harry R. Waldron '36.

Trombone: James S. Tyler '34, Russell H. White '34, Pembroke L. Nims '35, Angus M. Brooks '36, Clement Hill '36, Sydney P. White '36.

Piccolo: Francis B. Sprague '34.

Baritone: Leon W. Sears '34, Albert R. Chase '36.

Trumpet: Donald R. MacQuivey '34, R. Kenneth Miner '34, Russell L. Root '34, Carroll L. Beers '35, Everett F. Ellis '36.

Drums: Warren G. Goodrich '33, J. Reginald Springstead '36.

Bass: Philip L. Carpenter '33.

First Freshman Mountain Day Held by Mortar Board

Fifty freshman women enjoyed a hike and picnic supper sponsored by Mortar Board at Bread Loaf Friday, October 14.

The girls were taken by trucks to the beginning of the Long Trail at Pleiad. From there they hiked to the lake and back to Bread Loaf inn. Supper was served around open fires in back of the hotel, after which there was singing and story telling.

This first annual mountain day for freshmen women was held under the auspices of Mortar Board, in an effort to make it one of the traditions of the Women's College at Middlebury.

New Members of Women's Glee Club Chosen Monday

Thursday afternoon, October 13, and Monday, October 17, try-outs for the women's glee club were held at the music studio under the direction of Miss Prudence Fish.

Fifty-eight women competed this year. On both days the old members of the club and Miss Fish acted as judges.

According to present plans, the first appearance of the club at Middlebury will be at the Christmas chapel service. Further plans for future presentations have not yet been definitely made.

The first rehearsals of the club will be held Thursday, October 20.

The list of the new members who were elected to the club on Monday is as follows:

Catherine McDermott '34, Doris Anderson '35, Roberta Bourne '35, Elizabeth Bryan '35, Frances Chaffee '35, Eleanor Duke '35, Marjorie Hanchett '35, Elizabeth Baker '36, Marion Cole '36, Marion Hook '36, Katherine Kelley '36, Margaret Leach '36.

Rev. Garfield Morgan of Lynn, Mass., Will Speak at Vesper Service Sunday

Rev. Garfield Morgan, pastor of the Central Congregational church, of Lynn, Mass., will speak at the chapel service Sunday, October 23.

The Rev. Mr. Morgan was ordained into the ministry in 1919 and took up his pastorate in Lynn in 1923. He has engaged in young people's work and is recommended as a fine speaker by leaders of the Y. M. C. A.

BRING'EM BACK ALIVE
"Nature in the Raw" — as portrayed by the vicious battle between the python and the tiger . . . in Frank Buck's thrilling motion picture, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," filmed from nature in the Malay jungle.
"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

Ithaca Will Oppose Panther Saturday

Blue and White Favored to Win Second Home Game After Williams Victory

This Saturday the Panther will make his second home appearance of the season, taking on Ithaca, a newcomer to the Middlebury schedule.

After the form displayed in upsetting Williams, the Blue and White should have little trouble in making it two straight Saturday. The visitors have played in three games so far, winning, losing, and earning a tie, so no matter what happens against Middlebury it will not be a new experience to the physical directors.

In the opening game of the season a strong St. Bonaventure team humbled the Ithacan squad 39-6. Too much should not be assumed from this however as the powerful Manhattan eleven coached by "Chick" Meehan was fortunate in holding St. Bonaventure to a draw. In their second start Ithaca defeated Oswego state teachers college 12-0, and last week battled to a 0-0 tie with Cortland normal.

While the record of Midd's next opponent is not too bad, the opposition has hardly been of the calibre encountered by the Beckmen. The visiting line is extremely light, averaging only 166 pounds. This makes their forward wall even lighter than Midd's, which has never been considered heavy. The team is made up largely of sophomores, with only two seniors. There will also be several freshmen in the line-up that starts against Middlebury.

With the advantage in weight and experience that the Blue and White possesses, the odds are bound to be in their favor.

Frosh Football Team to Be Led by A. Golembeske

Anthony Golembeske was elected to the captaincy of the freshman football squad at a meeting held last week.

The frosh managers were also elected at the same time. They are Frank S. Boyce and Charles H. Startup.

Golembeske played football for three years at Norwich Free academy, Norwich, Conn. He was fullback for two years and quarterback for one season. This fall he is playing quarterback on the yearling team.

Panther Freshmen Conquer Montpelier

Two Blocked Punts Result in Touchdown and Safety for Initial Victory 8-6

A fighting Middlebury freshman football team made its first appearance on Porter field Saturday afternoon and out gamed a fast Montpelier seminary eleven to win 8-6. The game was marked by sustained interest and hard, almost vicious, battling.

The Panther first year men were the first to score. Early in the second quarter the seminary boys, deep in their own territory, were thrown for heavy losses, and were finally forced to punt. The Midd line surged through, blocked the punt, and when one of the Montpelier backs recovered in the end zone and tried to run it out, he was thrown for a safety.

The Middlebury touchdown was scored in the third period, on another blocked kick. After an exchange of punts, Montpelier was held for two downs on its own thirty-five yard line, and attempted to punt. Again the freshman line broke through, and the ball was recovered by Hoxie, right guard, who carried it for a touchdown.

The only Montpelier score came in the last quarter, by virtue of a well-executed forward pass from Conti to Coviello. This final quarter saw the play become unusually rough, and the officials had a difficult time keeping matters under control.

Coach Nelson's charges played alert football, despite the lapses that usually accompany frosh play. The team showed excellent kicking, some good running, but poor passing, while the blocking showed room for improvement.

The line-ups:

Middlebury '36	Position	Montpelier
Forbush	le	Banahan
MacLean	lt	Balles
Howard	lg	DeGiovia
Weston	c	Callaghan
Hoxie	rg	Gillis
Seixas	rt	Elmer
Clonan	re	Baxter
Golembeske	qb	Oney
Leete	lhb	Kenworthy
Martin	rhb	Emilio
Ruggeri	fb	Hayden

Score by periods:

Middlebury Frosh	0	2	6	0	—8
Montpelier	0	0	0	6	—6

Substitutions: Middlebury: Conners for Martin, Roberts for Howard, Lyon for Conners, Robbins for Clonan, Howard for Hoxie, Dawes for Ruggeri, Stevenson for Golembeske. Montpelier: Lovely for Banahan, Granger for DeGiovia, Clarey for Gillis, Rosner for Elmer, Coviello for Baxter, Larsen for Kenworthy, Conti for Hayden.

Blue and White Harriers Conquer Williams 23-32

Administering the first setback of the day to a Williams aggregation, a stunt which the football team repeated, the Middlebury team defeated the Purple hill-and-dalers 23-32 at Williamstown last Saturday.

Ellis of the losers was the first to breast the tape, followed shortly by D. Short and Sears of Middlebury. The next five places also went to the Blue and White, with Taylor, Capt. Short, Ingersoll, White, and Jillson finishing in that order.

As the race got underway Ellis and Ingersoll took the lead but the former soon forged to the front and lead the parade all the way, although Short and Sears pressed him hard. The latter was handicapped by lack of practice due to a leg injury.

The meet scheduled for this Saturday with St. Stephen's has been cancelled by them because of financial difficulties. This will give the Panthers two weeks to prepare for the contest with the strong Springfield team, although Coach Brown would probably prefer to have his men take part in at least one more stiff encounter before taking on the gymnasts.

Freshmen to Meet Vermont Yearlings

Middlebury Favored to Win in State Title Contest at Burlington Saturday

The first clash of the year between Middlebury and Vermont is scheduled for Saturday, when Coach Nelson takes his football squad to Burlington to meet the Green and Gold frosh.

Last fall the Kittens came here with a powerful team and found little trouble in defeating the Middlebury first year men. This season the Panther Cubs are in a fine position to avenge the setback, and if they can maintain the play they showed against Montpelier prospects for a victory are bright.

To date Vermont has engaged in two games and on both occasions they were defeated. Green Mountain Junior college was the first opponent to upset the U. V. M. frosh, and last Saturday the St. Lawrence yearlings repeated the trick.

Against Junior college the Kittens were helpless and although they presented a fairly good defence they could garner only two points while the winners collected twelve. The lack of offense was more clearly demonstrated when they lost to St. Lawrence 7-0. The latter outfit is not considered very strong, yet the losers could make no headway offensively.

In this last contest both Negus, and Blackwell, two very capable ends were out because of injuries, and their loss undoubtedly hurt the team. In all probability the Green and Gold will be at full strength on Saturday trying hard to turn back the Panther Cubs, as a victory in this contest will make up for any previous defeats.

The town of Middlebury was named because it was, in 1761, halfway between Salisbury and New Haven, which are now the kind of places one goes through.

Middlebury Upsets Williams With Three Touchdowns for 18-7 Score

Outrushing, outplaying and outguessing their opponents Middlebury crushed the Williams football team last Saturday on Weston field by a score of 18-7. It marked the first meeting of the eleven in two years and avenged a previous defeat suffered in 1930.

The Blue and White functioned like a well oiled machine and with a deceptive passing attack that completely baffled the heavier Purple, rolled up fifteen first downs to their opponents eight. Hoyle scored the first touchdown mid-way in the second period when he went off tackle for twelve yards, after the ball had been advanced from Midd's eighteen yard stripe by lateral passes and off tackle smashes. Hartrey tallied in the final quarter on a lateral pass from Yeomans, and Boehm went through left tackle for twenty yards and the last touchdown registered by the Blue and White. Williams' only score came in the final quarter on a pass to Wellman over the goal line and Lamberton place kicked the goal.

Middlebury took the offensive at the very start of the game, only penalties and fumbles prevented them from crossing the goal line in the first period.

Hartrey intercepted a pass from Markoski to open the second quarter, and and carried to the Blue forty-three yard line before he was downed by Lamberton. At this point a successful aerial followed by a double pass, Hoyle to Hartrey, carried the Panthers to Williams' twelve yard stripe. A fumble again lost all that had been gained, and after an exchange of punts the Beckmen found themselves back again in the shadow of their own goal posts.

Starting from the eighteen yard marker Middlebury launched a drive that swept the opposition before them, and only came to an end when Hoyle broke through left tackle for the first score of the day. This touchdown came after a sustained march of eighty yards. Corliss' attempt to convert the extra point was unsuccessful, and Middlebury led by a score of 6-0.

Neither team was able to tally in the third stanza, and the play was rather even. The Purple made one serious threat that ended with the Panthers taking the ball on downs on their own four yard line.

As the final period got under way Middlebury broke loose with a series of forwards, laterals, and reverses that had the Bay Staters all at sea. Taking the ball on their twenty yard line after Williams had grounded a pass over the goal line, the winners produced a varied assortment of passes and line plays that brought them to the invader's twelve yard mark. Collins and Hartrey made eight yards in three rushes, and on the next play Yeomans tossed a lateral to Hartrey that was good for a touchdown. Again the try for the extra point was missed.

The final score for Middlebury came after Riccio had blocked a kick to give the Panthers possession of the ball on Williams thirty yard line. Boehm and Hartrey ripped the Purple line to pieces, and the former finally cut off left tackle and ran twenty yards to a score. Corliss' try for the extra point went low, and the count was Middlebury 18, Williams 0.

The losers only score came late in the final quarter when it meant nothing and was the result of a forward pass, Markoski to Wellman. Lamberton converted the extra point.

The line-up:

Following the speeches, discussion of the points raised was held around the radios, with faculty members as leaders. Both party platforms were criticised, and defects in the present party system pointed out. The inherent similarity of the proposals made by each party was disclosed, and the purpose back of the assertations made was considered.

This program of political discussion was arranged by Prof. Harry M. Fife, assisted by several faculty members who served as leaders of the groups. The places where the program was heard, and those who led the discussion, were as follows:

sure that under the strain of a new revolution we will be any better fitted to choose our path?

The logical procedure is to plan for a gradual re-building and re-casting of our governmental ideals. Better than any sudden catastrophe would be the slow movement of a campaign for strengthening the position of Norman Thomas, or some other leader who really does represent our conviction.

Those of us who are for Norman Thomas but aren't going to vote for him are making a mistake. A vote for Thomas will not be wasted. No one realizes better than the college student that he hasn't a chance of being elected this year, but if we want to see his organization strengthened, we have got to make it grow from within. Each one who votes for Thomas this year will help convince the man who would have cast his vote that way if he hadn't felt it was so helpless. A respectable statistical showing for Thomas in the next election will do more to strengthen his party than any other argument. We can't expect to see him in office this year, or even four years from now. It takes patience and a good deal of watchful waiting to build up a new party. But if we have any moral courage and conviction at all we should not be ashamed to stand at our guns and build for the future.

Stand by your ideals if you have any. If you will not do this you are right in claiming that the polls have no solution for your problem.

LYLE GLAZIER '33.

Mixed Doubles Matches Advance to Fourth Round

The third round of the mixed doubles tennis tournament has been successfully completed, but due to unfavorable weather, the quarter final have been delayed.

Several upsets of the seeded teams have been witnessed thus far. Ball and Rosbrook were defeated by Forbush and Crowe in straight sets. The first quarter final match resulted in Wilson and Cushing being defeated by Bland and Hoehn. Other seeded teams, which have not yet been eliminated are Flagg and Cornwall, LaForce and Markarian, and Ide and Triellet.

If the weather is favorable the matches will be completed by next Sunday. It is expected that the semi-finals will prove the most interesting so far, because of the unexpected upsets in the earlier part of the tournament.

The charms which are to be presented to the winner of the finals by the women's athletic association, are expected soon, and will be put on display in the college bookstore. The players in the finals and semi-finals will be furnished with balls by the men's tennis squad.

Women's Hockey Teams Elect Class Managers

Women's hockey has opened its season with the individual classes holding their practices at the following periods:

Juniors and Seniors, Wednesday and Friday at 4:20.

Sophomores, Tuesday and Thursday at 4:20.

Freshmen, Tuesday and Thursday at 3:35.

The four team managers who were elected are: Ruth McMenemy, seniors; Marion Bugbee, juniors; Ruth Damerell, sophomores; and Harmony Buell, freshmen.

An announcement of hockey captains and the schedule for regular games will be made at a later date.

This is under the direction of Dorothy Wheaton '33, head of hockey.

"You call it America's pipe tobacco!"

—AND HERE'S WHY:
Granger is made of White Burley Tobacco — the type between the kind used for chewing and the kind used for cigarettes.

In other words, it's pipe tobacco—and if you're smoking a pipe, you want tobacco made for pipes—not tobacco made for something else, it matters not how good it is.

Handy pocket pouch of heavy foil. Keeps tobacco better and makes price lower.
